Homecoming 2000, Rowan was ready!

Homecoming 2000's theme was "The Time Of Your Life" and the activities involved supported that theme. Through each event we were reminded that this is the time of our lives. The whole campus community was brought together for this week of celebration and campus pride.

The events of the week varied in attendance, but not in excitement. The Delta Sigma Theta Cookoff began the week of celebration on October 10th. The Homecoming Pageant then took center stage in the Student Center Pit on October 11th. The following evening, October 12th, the second annual Lip Sync competition proved to be the success that it was last year.

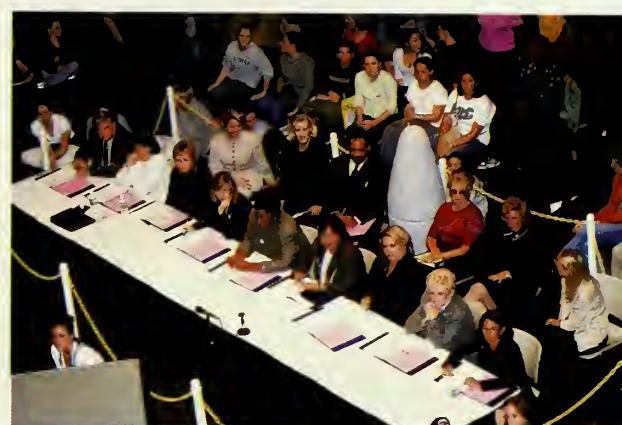

Then moving outside the Powder Puff Football intramural game and the Spirit Bonfire took place on October 13th. Saturday morning, October 14th, brought about the annual Homecoming parade and that afternoon the Rowan football team took the field against Cortland State. That evening the Homecoming week came to a close with three outstanding events. A post game concert and carnival filled the student center patio with fun games and music. The Alpha Phi Alpha step show stomped into Esby gym with authority and fireworks lit the sky over Rowan to bring a booming close to Homecoming 2000 "The Time Of Your Life."

Who wants to be a King or a Queen?

The class of 2000 sponsored the Homecoming Pageant on October 11th. The Student Center Pit was filled to capacity to support the thirteen men and twenty-two women going for the titles of Homecoming King 2000 and Homecoming Queen 2000. Contestants representing various campus organizations were first introduced to the audience in business attire. The pool was then narrowed to eight male and eleven female contestants who participated in a casual wear and formal wear portion. Intermission was filled with dance performances from student groups. Four members of the Asian Cultural Association performed a breakdance/rave segment and the 3-D dancers presented a high energy performance to bring the crowd to its feet. The winners of the evening were announced by host Ed Streb after the exciting intermission. Second runners up were Lorin Mueller and Melvin Moore. First runners up were Sharon Phillips and Mike Greeley. Next came the announcement of homecoming king and queen. Raheen Crippen and Janine Jones were named the 2000 Homecoming King and Queen. Raheen's words of encouragement to us were that hard work and involvement produce success. Janine said that it was an honor to represent Rowan students and their diversity. The night was enjoyable for all.

Raffles were drawn throughout the night to give prizes to the audience. Terrence Moss, the announcer for the evening, did an outstanding job keeping the audience's attention.

Rowan's cookie monster performed a great rendition of "C" is for Cookie" and was astonished at the size of the back-up singing cookies.

These ladies imitated Salt 'N' Pepa and sang "Let's Talk about Sex." The added bonus of this skit was the condoms they threw out into the crowd.

Music, dance, and fun all in the spirit of the Lip Sync 2000.

The second annual Lip Sync contest sponsored by Residential and Campus Life took place in the Student Center Pit on Thursday, October 12th. The contest, complete with cash prizes, proved to be a must see event again this year. Performances included male rockettes, cross-dressing singers, Cher look alikes, strip teases, cookie monster and much more. The Student Center Pit was overflowing with people interested in watching the acts. Raffles for Busta Rhymes T-shirts and cameras kept the evening interesting for the audience. Some audience members were also lucky enough to be thrown cookies and treats or condoms from various performers. The awards of $100, $200 and $300 went to the winning performances. Third place prize was awarded to the Christina Aguilera act, while second place was given to the Cabaret performers, probably for their high kicking. First place was given to the "Ding a Ling" group who said that all performers did very well. The judging was difficult and all the performers deserved to win a prize. The contest was extremely well attended; people were everywhere just trying to get a glimpse of the action. The performances were outstanding and the Lip Sync competition is an outstanding hit among students and will be an event in many Homecomings of the future.

The Student Center was filled to capacity and the audience delighted in every single performance. Congratulations to all the participants for putting on an excellent show!

Sonny and Cher let the audience know who's "Got you Babe."

The "Ding a Ling" group excited the crowd with humor and talent. They excited themselves by taking first place.

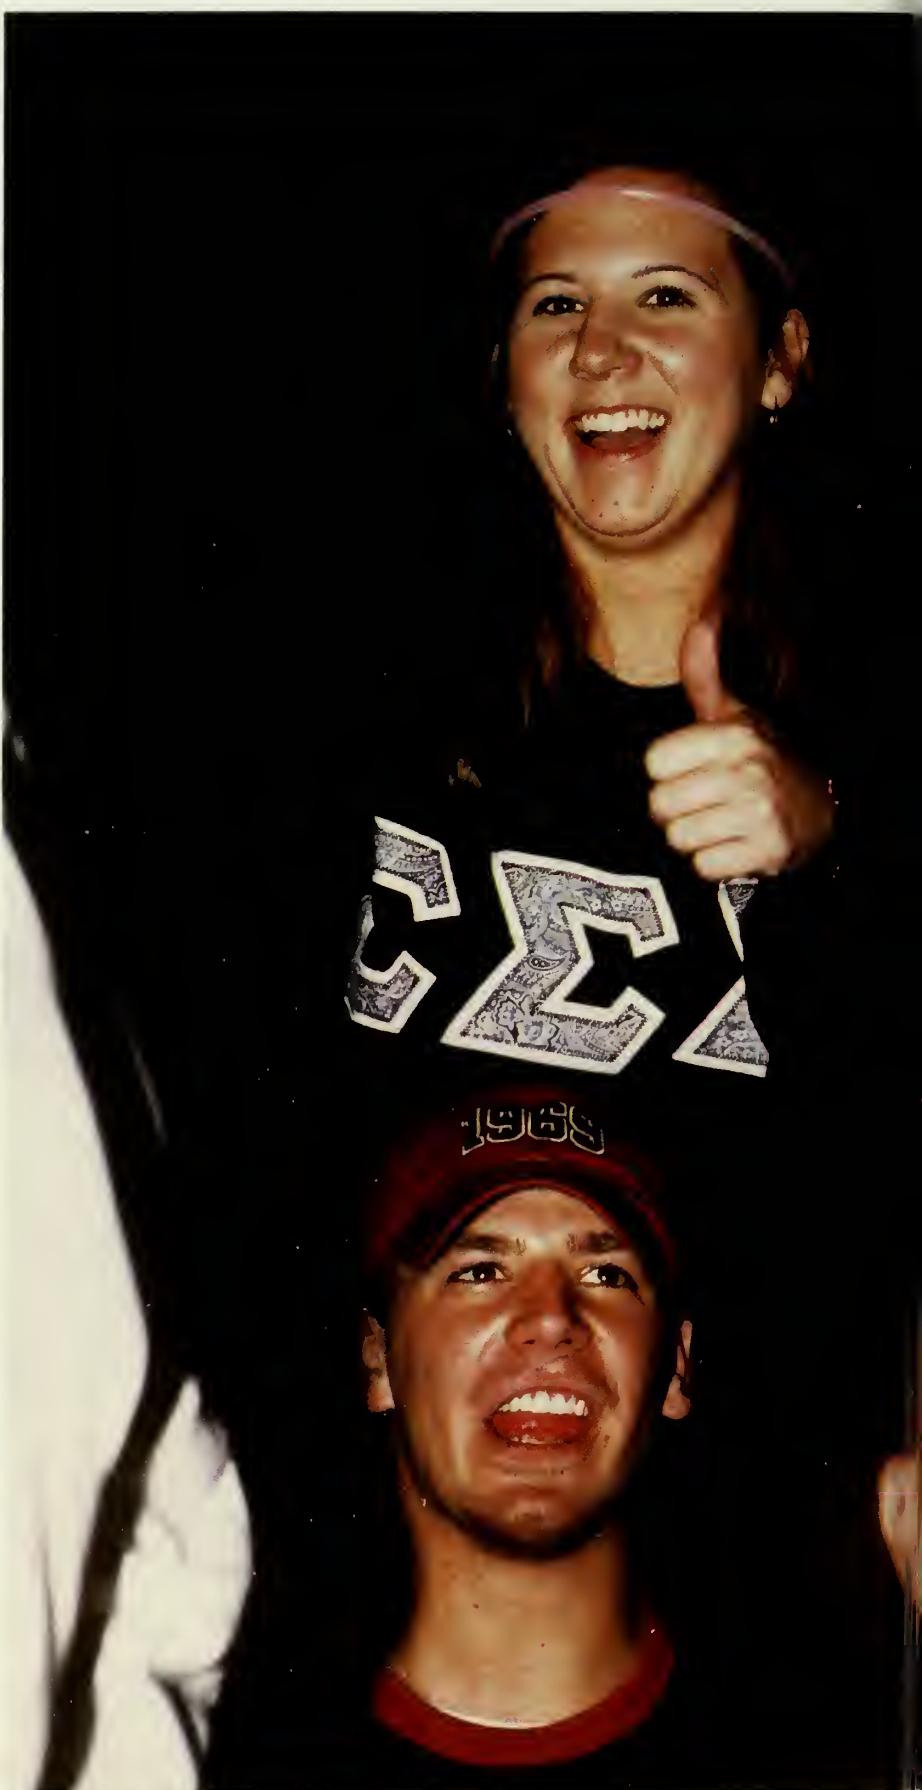

Judging the 2000 Lip Sync competition was a very difficult task. All the performances were excellent and entertaining.

Light and sound filled the sky during the Pep Rally and Bonfire.

Spirits were high when Rowan students gathered on the intramural field for the pep rally and bonfire Friday night, October 13th. Glassboro High School shared in the flames and fun at this event. Students were greeted by the Vice President of Student Affairs, Drew Callandrella; SGA President, Ryan North, and the athletics director, Joy Reighn. The festivities included a spirit contest with a category for the sports teams and one for the greeks. The cheering, screams and shouts elevated when a replica of Cortland State's mascot, a Red Dragon, and a football player in Cortland's colors were tossed into the fire to be engulfed by the hot flames. The Prof danced around and the teams were all introduced as they walked through the cheerleader's lines. The bands played music and rallied the whole field into a deafening screaming frenzy! The pre-game psych feast always proves to bring the spirited people out. The crowd was large and covered much of the field. In attendance were the Homecoming King and Queen, almost all the sports teams, many sororities and fraternities, plus some faculty and staff joined in the celebration.

In addition, the intramural powder puff football game was played just before the rally. Delta Zeta received the coveted honor of being the champions this year.

Rowan's annual parade takes floats through Glassboro.

On Saturday morning, October 14th the annual Homecoming parade took to the streets of Glassboro. Rowan University students were joined in the parade by Glassboro High School for the first time ever. The parade's usual route flows from High Street, down onto Carpenter Street until it stops in the football parking lot next to the football field for skit judging. The theme of Homecoming, "The Time of Your Life" was well incorporated into each organization's banners and skits. Some skits were plagued with sound system failure which made it difficult for the audience and most importantly the judges to hear. All the skits were enjoyable with dancing and story line throughout. The judges had a difficult task to choose winners. The parade skit winners were announced during halftime at the football game. The non-Greek category winners were the Campus Players in first, SAB in second and the North Halls in third. The Greek competition which is always very competitive placed as follows: Theta Chi and Alpha Epsilon Phi placed first with their "Summer of Your Life" skit. Kappa Sigma and Sigma Sigma Sigma came in second while Phi Kappa Sigma and Sigma Sigma Sigma came in third. All the floats and skits were fantastic. Congratulations to the winners and all who participated.

Campus Players members "had the time of their lives" as they danced to the popular "Dirty Dancing" hit and into first place in the non-Greek category of the competition.

Rowan University Football vs. Cortland State

Fans filled the stands at John Page field for the Homecoming game to see Rowan defeat Cortland State, the New Jersey Athletic Conference's first place team. Rowan led early in the first half with a 24-0 lead. The offensive line dominated the game and finished with a total of 500 yards. The Profs running game was solid and gained 195 yards on rushing attacks alone. The rushing game was not the only way Rowan gained points. Quarterback Mike Warker completed 17 of 26 passes which gained 286 yards for the profs. Although the offensive line had 14 penalties called upon them which lost the Profs 123 yards they were almost unstoppable.

The Profs remained on top of the Cortland State Red Dragons the entire game. The defense completely shutdown the opponent. The Red Dragons quarterback was sacked four times by Rowan's defensive line and the opposition was picked off three times. Rowan's wide receiver, Scott Lipford, completed seven catches to gain the Profs 116 yards. Rowan's scoring barrage did not allow the Red Dragons any openings. The packed stands erupted after each touchdown made by the Profs. Students, families, alumni, administration and all that attended enjoyed Rowan's 45-10 blowout game that knocked Cortland State out of first place in the conference.

Student Life

RU

Rowan student life can only be defined by the students.

Student Life at Rowan falls somewhere between the moment at hand and a lifetime to come. Students interactions with each other form life friendships and varied experiences give students knowledge for a lifetime. There is much more to college than studying books or listening to a professor lecture. Whether you attend Homecoming activities or just read about them in The Whit each student has a part in forming Rowan. The campus has been changing constantly and continues to change. The new developments and plans to come will create a different type of student life by the year. When the class of 2001 returns for a visit in the future they may not see the campus they remembered. The buying of new land and building of new buildings as well as the reconstruction of old buildings is involved in Dr. Farish's master plan.

Rowan is regarded as a commuter school, but many of those commuters join in the campus life because of their close proximity to the campus. It is a wonder that so many activities take place on this small, but lively campus. Student life encompasses everything from classes to parties, from fraternities to sororities, from playing on a sports team to working out at the rec center, from being a spectator at a sporting event to eating in the food court, from hanging out in the student center to reading under a tree by the creek. All the things that make up student life are as diverse as the thousands of students living it. Whether striving to be a civil engineer or a radio announcer, a high school teacher or a public realtions practitioner, an artist or a personal trainer; Rowan University connects all students, of all interests and backgrounds on its campus through

STUDENT LIFE.

Student Life

The Big Event

April 1, 2000 marked the beginning of a new tradition for the student body of Rowan University. The first "Big Event," sponsored by the Student Government Association, was a monstrous task. It began to take shape in the Spring of 2000 as a community helper project. This event was a project started in order to thank the surrounding community. The master mind and founding chair, Mike Jensen, envisioned a one-day service project where students could show their appreciation to local Glassboro residents by completing numerous services throughout the municipality.

The "Big Event" allowed members of the student body to give a little back to the community that willingly supports Rowan University in many ways. The event day drew organizations and other students together to help Glassboro clean a local park and perform other maintenance in the area. Supplies, food and tools were donated by local companies and merchants to make this event possible. Saturday, April 1, 2000 students woke up at 9 a.m. to participate in the clean-up of Renlund Park, located on Delsea Drive in Glassboro, directly behind the Burger King and to perform other small tasks in the town of Glassboro. The "Big Event" brought more than 600 students throughout the campus community out to give Glassboro some needed attention.

Volunteers came from a variety of campus groups. Fraternities and sororities participated along with student professionals groups, clubs and organizations. The day's event schedule included cleaning Renlund park, assisting at a spring festival in Glassboro and performing maintenance with project teams on the homes of senior citizens in the area. The park needed new paint on the benches, better brick walls, a spruced up landscape design and some new plantings to beautify the grounds. The "Big Event" had everything: community service, student bonding, entertainment, special guests and a barbecue for the hardworking volunteers.

The "Big Event" will become an annual community service project to better the University's relationship with the Glassboro community and support to the areas that surround the University. The "Big Event's" primary focus was not about the amount of jobs that were completed, or even the number of students who participated. The real benefit of this day was the interaction that students were able to have with the residents of the campus' surrounding area. The unity resulting from this day was an inspiration and was the true purpose of the "Big Event". The success of this project is seen daily by the residents of Glassboro and also by the students. The students are giving a little back to the town, giving a little back to the University and giving a lot to the people of Glassboro.

Rowan Activities

The big name that came to perform for Rowan students this year was Busta Rhymes. The football stadium was packed and the evening proved to be a success. Students enjoyed the energy of his concert and respected the talent Busta displayed. Many anticipated problems at the concert because of the occupancy and excitement that was generated weeks before the concert date. The concert was great, thanks to Residential and Campus Life and Joe Costal, Student Activities Board advisor. Rowan had a great outdoor concert and can bring bands to campus in the future.

Rowan Connections took place again this year on the Student Center patio as the academic year began. The outside barbecue and informational gathering promotes student involvement in the numerous clubs and organizations on campus. Tables are set-up by each organization for the day and students can come and speak with the student leaders who are involved in different student activities. The weather was kind to the gathering and this event encouraged many students to have extra-curricular activities become a part of their lives.

Las Vegas, Nevada comes to the Student Center cafeteria on a regular basis when Residential and Campus Life hosts Casino Night. Students may try their luck at various types of roulette, test their skills with a few hands of poker, attempt to hit 21 at a quick game of blackjack or participate in other casino games. The night begins with each student receiving casino chips to play with and winning hands gain raffle tickets. The evening ends with students winning prizes in raffle drawings.

Organ Donor Awareness day sponsored by the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) takes place during the spring semester. The day includes entertainment in the Student Center and various special guests. The whole day is meant to educate students about the need for donated organs and the many lives that can be saved by becoming a donor. The annual event has become a well-known day and has gained national recognition for the University and Rowan's PRSSA chapter.

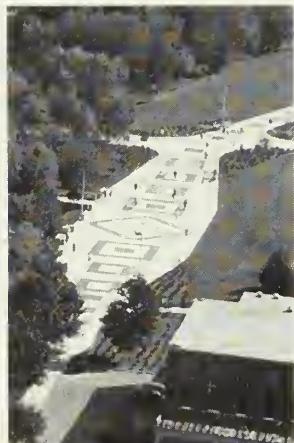

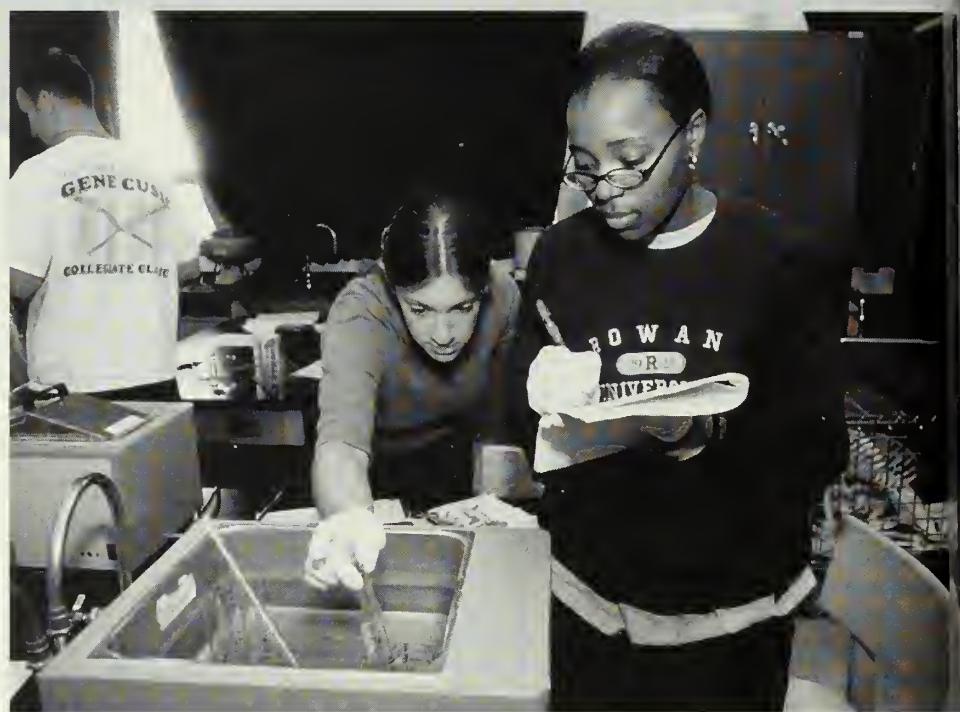

Take Back the Night

White ribbons were displayed on everyone's shirt during Project Stop and at the annual Take Back the Night celebration. The three days of activities were sponsored by Rowan's Help Hotline. The Help Hotline is a student-run telephone hotline that helps callers with all personal problems and issues of domestic violence and dating violence. These include: rape, sexual assault and sexual harassment. Speakers gave encouragement to many survivors of these violent acts and an open mic sharing session gave people the opportunity to share their experience and pain caused by these types of crimes. At the conclusion of the final evening there was a candle-lit march through campus in protest of the ways violence permeates our culture. The activities of this year's Take Back the Night tribute varied greatly. Activities included: a presentation of music poetry and reflection by Dr. Suzanne Stutman, author of "Broken Feather," the Clothesline Project in which students painted a t-shirt and hung them all around the Student Center pit to symbolize a lifeline of support for the survivors, these shirts also hung to honor and remember a victim of personal/sexual violence. The final event was a kickboxing and self-defense demonstration for anyone who wished to learn a few defensive moves. The three day event was an excellent success.

Celebrity Auction

The Celebrity Auction is an annual event to raise money for a local charity. This year the funds raised were donated to the Dooley House in Camden. The Dooley House is an organization that helps children with AIDS and other terminal illnesses. The Student Government chooses a cause each year and plans special events to raise money for the cause. Christmas gifts were gathered for the children that receive treatment at the Dooley House and funds were raised to donate to the organization itself.

The auctioneer of the Celebrity Auction was Ed Streb a communications professor who has served as the Master of Ceremonies for many of the events that are held on campus. The items that were bid on varied tremendously. There is no other time at Rowan where you can bid on lunch with the President of the University or the very top number in the housing lottery. There were over 147 items up for bid on the floor of the Student Center atrium. Various pictures of the cast members of "Friends," scripts from popular television shows, Jackie Chan memorabilia, signed pictures of Tipper Gore, etc. You name the object and the auction probably had it to sell.

The celebrity auction raised the most money of all the Holiday Help Week projects. Streb used many creative ploys to raise the price on select items. Busta Rhymes and Phil Collins, Mr. Rogers and Paul Anka and even Jennifer Aniston had a hand in helping the children with their generous donations for the auction. The Student Government heads up the Holiday Help Week project and usually begins a year in advance to collect all the valuable items for the auction. The most popular items year after year still remain to be lunch with Dr. Farish (or the President of the University) and the top housing lottery number. These items alone have been known to bring in over $300 each.

Over the years the celebrity auction has raised funds for many different charities, organizations and positive causes. The night is always full of laughs and lots of money. Students look forward to viewing the items that have been gathered for auction and also seeing the amount of money that certain items can obtain. Students have been known to shout out astoundingly high prices for pictures of their favorite actress or books signed by the authors that can seem almost invaluable. Picture of Busta Rhymes, $40. Script to the Tonight's Show $65. Watching students buy Dr. Farish's time, priceless.

As always the celebrity auction proved to be a profitable and fun evening for Rowan. However, the true focus of the evening had to be the fact that the money was raised for charity. The highest benefit of this event is the help that the funds could give to all the children with disease that look to the Dooley House for help.

Rowan Happenings

So, how safe is it to have both a highway going through campus and train tracks running on the edges? Well, that question has been asked many times by parents, students and administration. An accident that placed both Route 322 and the tracks under investigation happened this academic year. Outside of Triad a truck was literally split into two parts by a train railing through Glassboro. Luckily no one was injured. The train whistle blew for over a minute as it approached 322. Three cars made it through the light, but the tractor trailer was not as fortunate.

Phi Kappa Psi held its first Beauty and the Beast pageant in December. The first beauty named was Daria Giannotti of Alpha Sigma Alpha and the newest beast named was Nick Katz. The event raised $600 for the Rosie O'Donnell Adoption Agency. Many of the fraternities and sororities were present to support the event and their friends. The contestant couples participated in games which included: a pie eating contest, karaoke singing competition, balloon popping event and a question and answer session proving how well the couples knew one another.

Registration, UGH! Yes, as always, the lines were long! Waiting to drop classes and add classes took up an entire afternoon. People grunted and groaned while they were waiting for their number to be called. The suggestions about having a system online to fix the problems in a student's schedule and using the internet, rather than having to waste a day waiting, were constant. Frustration was on the rise, but students finally figured out the classes they needed and were able to be satisfied with their schedule. Of course, a day of trouble turned to be a semester of success.

What did people do before when they got a call in the middle of the day and weren't at home? Answering machines have fallen away in use. The machine pick-up message is worth nothing these days unless it includes the person's cellular phone number. Immediate connection is required by the technology generation. Can you believe people actually couldn't talk to their friends while they walked to class? People actually couldn't call home from their cars when they were going to be late? Well, Rowan students don't have those hassles.

Dare to Dream

Sigma Sigma Sigma proved that even the professional sport players can venture into different realms for a good cause. Half of the proceeds from "Dare to Dream" were donated to the Robbie Page Memorial, which helps hospitalized children. The other half was donated to "Pros for Kids," a national organization of current and retired professional sports stars. They work to promote education for children about the dangers of drugs and alcohol. In addition to the NFL players there were members from the National Basketball Association, Major League Baseball and the National Hockey League. The requirement to participate was that the players be committed to a drug and alcohol-free lifestyle. The professional athletes played one game split into an equal number of minutes so that two out of eight teams played in each quarter. The teams were made up of Rowan students and faculty, Glassboro citizens and local middle and high school students. The night was enjoyable and was beneficial for the charities.

Rowan Hall

Since we first arrived at Rowan in our Freshman year we have been detoured by fenced construction areas, been awoken by the jackhammer of progress, dodged the backhoe and cranes traveling through campus paths and heard many a construction worker whis at the passing college females. Yes, Rowan has been growing in leaps and bounds ever since our first tour as prospective students, while we were high school seniors. The addition of the new Science building, residence halls, moving of the athletic fields and renovations taking place on old structures will cause a whole new campus layout for us to learn when we attend homecoming games and alumni events in the future.

Rowan Hall was the third structure built to begin the process of forming a new and modern campus. The Library and the Recreation Center set a precedent for the Rowan Image. It has been rumored that Rowan Hall was sinking into the swamp area behind but it is beginning to be the place that Admissions Ambassadors cannot miss on their tours around campus, because of its inner and outer beauty. What other academic building have you ever seen that has a winding staircase just inside, overlooking an open atrium and a full wall of windows? To top that off, the view to outside has a few fountains and a lake offset by a background of trees. Come on now, that's style! The engineering students do not know how good they have it. Although many say that they should set up a bed in a closet because they never get to leave, the building has an unexplainable charm that draws people inside with the marble flooring and the windowed stairwells.

When Henry and Betty Rowan gave their generous gift to Glassboro State College it was only a matter of time before the place started to take on a whole new distinguished look let alone the new name that was adopted. Although many people resisted some of the changes they have been unable to refute the obvious benefits. Anyone can see the positive outcome for the University community, especially the students who call Rowan "home". President Farish's visionary Master Plan is beginning to be transformed from words and blueprints on a page to the buildings on campus, the classes we attend and the University's landscape. Rowan has now received the prestigious position as being ranked a top tier school by The US News and World Report and also honored with monetary donations due to the futuristic view the University is developing.

Years of planning were needed for the College of Engineering to be established and to build Rowan Hall, the amazing building that now stands on the west side of campus, to be completed. Rowan Hall did exactly what it was supposed to, it created a new Image and a different scene for the campus to build around.

Rowan Progress

Savitz's renovations were completed for the academic year. The building brought most of the student service departments under one roof. Rowan students will no longer have to cross Route 322 four or five times to change a grade, adjust billing problems, pick-up their financial aid forms, etc. The days of those hassles are over. Now most of the student services needed frequently are located in Savitz. The beautiful architecture has many windows to provide a feeling of accessibility to students.

President Donald Farish announces the Master Plan to transform the University. The plan will include the construction of a $41-million science building, a new home for the College of Education, a 400-bed residence hall and new athletic facilities and the expansion of Rowan's Performing Arts facilities. The University will also undertake a $10-million landscape and campus safety improvement project, eliminate deferred maintenance and purchase land and property near the campus. The plan is scheduled to take place over a ten-year period from 2001 - 2010.

The Rowan University Library was finally named! The Campbell family of Salem, New Jersey donated $2.5 million to Rowan University on December 5, 2000. $1 million was donated to establish a professorial chair in the College of Business and $1.5 million was donated to fund an endowment for the library and purchase a residence for the University's president. On December fifth the Rowan Community was honored to welcome the Campbell's into the Rowan family and name the Library after them to show our appreciation for their generous gift.

The ground was officially broken for the new science building on December 13, 2000. This building is one of the first components to be undertaken of a $270-million, 10-year plan. The new three-story, 150,000-square-foot science building will house the Biology, Chemistry and Physics departments and include state-of-the-art laboratories as well as a planetarium, rooftop greenhouse and observation deck and a 16-inch telescope housed in a rooftop dome. The building will be built on the area between Robinson and Bosshart.

Student Center Renovations

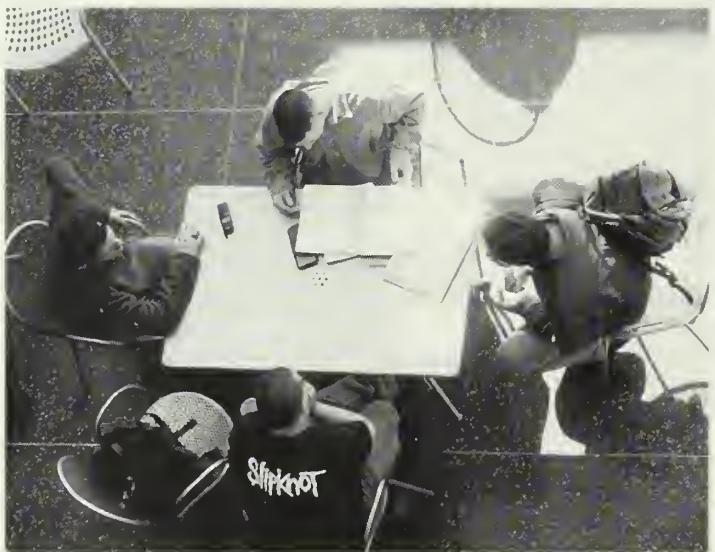

When the 2000-2001 academic year began the Student Center Pit renovations were not exactly finished. Students were distraught with the colors that were being painted in the Student Center and the fact that the PIT was virtually unusable. The Pit was out of use for quite sometime. When the year began the carpeting was not down and the paint was drying. It was difficult to imagine what the Pit would look like green, blue and purple and, even if you did, it was even more difficult to see it looking better than it had been. What students lacked in vision they were forced to make up for in patience. The Student Center Pit renovations were completed and looked better than ever in late September, 2000. New furniture including: end tables, chairs, couches and even studying tables were placed in the Pit on the brand new carpeting. Now that it is finished students have forgotten the way it looked in the Fall and just how wrong we were about the color mixture.

Diverse organizations bring students with like interests together to simply make a difference.

The organizations, clubs, associations, fraternities and sororities are what keeps Rowan students interacting and growing with each other. Knowledge, commitment and involvement invite each student to partake in the extra-curricular activities offered on campus. Everyone contributes to the whole and every group is much more than the sum of its individual parts. Whether a student searches for that vital resume building organization or a fun and creative organization to de-stress there are plenty of choices on campus. A student can choose from running for class president, starting their own organization or becoming part of the greek community through a fraternity or sorority and anything in between. It is not difficult to see the impact that the students have on this campus. The organizations assist the students and the community through fundraising for charities, sponsoring activities for students, giving students practical skills use and allowing an outlet for students to meet diverse people.

The balanced search for individuality and belonging is all encompassed by one's involvement in organizations. Some students long to lead large groups while others want to make a difference on the smaller scale. All students at Rowan have their own unique ideas and interests. The Student Government gives each one them the same chance to chart their own path. New organizations and groups are constantly being formed and recognized by the student government. With additions Rowan University can offer more varying ways to bring students together. Rowan gives students ways to meet others and grow in the knowledge that is useful in today's world. Many of the benefits that Rowan offers can be found in its various

Graduates,

Again we find ourselves ending one chapter in our lives and beginning another. You have all worked hard for many years and have rightfully earned a college degree from Rowan University. I would wish you luck in your future endeavors, however luck won't get you very far in life. Instead I'll share with you something that has helped many meet their aspirations, having faith in themselves.

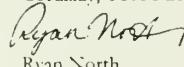

It is vital that you remember you're capable of anything. If you want something go and get it. Don't let others be a distraction or become an obstacle withholding you from your success. Have confidence in your decisions and try not to let minor things overwhelm you. Trusting yourself and your beliefs is what will help you get to the top of the mountain.

Also don't compare your success to others. Success is not measured by wealth but by your good deeds. What good are you to this world if you're not making a difference for others? Remember to take time out of your busy schedules and help others reach their goals. Tutor the young and become role models. Spend time with the elderly and learn from them. Give willingly to the poor and become a helping hand. Make your voices be heard by following politics and voting.

It is easy to become complacent with life and settle for mediocre things. But why settle for average when nothing about you is average. You are a profound graduate from Rowan University. You are someone's son or daughter, mother or father, aunt or uncle. You're an individual unlike any other. Be proud of who you are and what you've accomplished. Always remember having faith is the key to your answers.

In all, congratulations on your accomplishments and remember, don't be one out of a million, but one unlike a million.

Cordially, Your SGA President

Class of 2001 President's Address

Christine Brunke

My fellow Classmates of 2001

The time has come upon us when we must say farewell to our college, Rowan University, and prepare for our future endeavors, whatever they may be. It seems like just yesterday we were freshmen and getting ready to start our college career. When we were freshmen we were told college would go by in the blink of an eye and I didn't believe that could be possible. Can you believe that are now seniors getting ready for our college graduation?

I wonder where all the time went but I am glad the time has come for us to start our new memory. We should all look back on the great times we have had at Rowan and never forget the many wonderful things our school has offered us. Do you ever think of how different your college career would have turned out if you hadn't chosen to come to Rowan University? You wouldn't have been able to say your school was in "the boro," you wouldn't be only twenty minutes away from the city of Philadelphia, your school wouldn't have a major highway separating the two sides of campus, you wouldn't know what type of animal a "Prof" was, you wouldn't be able to wear our favorite colors- gold and brown and MOST importantly you wouldn't have met all the wonderful people that are here at Rowan.

Everything happens for a reason. I am sure you will find that reason out later down the road, you haven't found it already. When I got accepted into Rowan all I can remember are my parents saying, "We're going to Rowan." I cannot picture my college career being anywhere else. This school has added so much to my life and I don't even want to think about how different my life would be if I had gone to another school. There are so many inspirational people that I have become friends with and these people will always be a part of my life even after I leave Rowan. For some reason your parents are always right and no matter how much you want to fight it, it's true. However, I am very glad that I listened to my parents when they told me to go to Rowan because I definitely knew that I would be happy here.

Maybe you had a similar experience coming to Rowan, whatever your experience was, you should be very happy graduating from this prestigious university. Since you now have received your degree, your future will hold many wonderful things. Whenever you fall into a rut in the "real world" remember where you came from and you'll do fine. Good luck in all that you do in the years to come and may you find the path that best suits your life.

Best Wishes, Your Senior Class President,

Christine Ann Brunke

The PROS and SGA try to remind students on a daily basis about the dangers of drinking and driving with this crashed car sitting on campus by route 322.

The 2000 Homecoming King, Raheen Crippen, does not seem to be upset behind the jail and bail bars raising money and begging people to pay for his release. All the proceeds and "BAILE" money went towards the "Big Event" expenses.

Holiday Helper Elves help to raise money by sponsoring a raffle and giving SGA the funds raised to donate to the Dooley House.

The Ballroom comes alive each winter for the Winter Ball sponsored by SAB. This event gives students the chance to get together in formal wear and dance the night away.

The trip sponsored by the SAB brought many Rowan students to attend a Devils Hockey game.

This year the Mardi Gras theme of the Winter Ball brought people out to enjoy a taste of New Orleans and the dance spirit of that city.

Athletics

RU ready?

RU ready?

Athletics is more than lasting traditions and winning records.

The term "student athlete" is often used within the athletic department at Rowan. It is considerably easy to separate the term and choose to be one or the other, but the athletes at Rowan manage their season's busy schedules and their academic courses with record ease. Rowan athletes understand that a game face is more than just a front to hide any fear from their opponents. The game face is the armor that is used to bring forth the best effort against the opponent and what is used to walk away with an honorable win. The success of an athletic program is not simply the records of the teams or how many trophies are won during a given season. The success comes more from the athletes that form the program. The sportsmanship, dedication and teamwork that is exhibited on Rowan's athletic fields, courts and track is an inspiration.

Fall, winter and spring all bring about new forms of competition on Rowan's campus. From the overcrowded stands of the football stadium in the brisk fall weather; to the piercing screams of the spectators in Esby Gymnasium during a basketball game, while the winter wind whistles outside; to the joyful shouts ringing through the air from the baseball field as the spring sun brightens the sky. The athletes are supported from season to season by students, faculty and administration. The winning tradition of Rowan's athletic department is not limited to any sport or any season. All throughout the year and the three sporting seasons coaches and athletes achieve greatness. In the following pages all the teams gain some form of recognition for their dedication. The true spirit and love for sport is demonstrated in each face during each game that makes up Rowan.

Dear Senior Student Athletes:

It is hard to believe that your time as a student and an athlete at Rowan University has come to an end. It seems like only yesterday that some of you arrived on campus one hot August day with fear and trepidation as to what lay ahead. Double and triple sessions, long van trips, fast food restaurants, the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat, overtime wins and last second losses, conference championships, NCAA tournaments, final four appearances, National Champions, All Americans and Academic All Americans, individual honors and team titles. These are wonderful memories you will have to cherish forever.

For me, as the Athletic Director, I want to personally thank you for selecting Rowan University as the institution to pursue your academic career and participate in one of the most outstanding athletic programs in the country. I have had the privilege of watching you grow and mature into outstanding individuals and observe your development as an athlete.

Our accomplishments, as student athletes, have brought recognition and national claim to Rowan University and the athletic program. You have enabled us to continue the winning tradition and instill pride and esprit de corps throughout the Rowan community. Each one of you impressed me with your personal commitment to excellence, a commitment to balance academics and athletics, a commitment to perform the highest level and represent yourselves, family and this institution with the utmost pride. The hard work, sweat, tears, frustration and in some cases, the blood shed in the playing arena has paid off and you are to be commended for a job well done.

Words cannot adequately express the deep debt of gratitude I feel toward each one of you. Thank you and congratulations for your outstanding achievements. You have made me very proud. As an alumnus, I urge you to return and support the teams. I wish you best wishes and much success in your future endeavors.

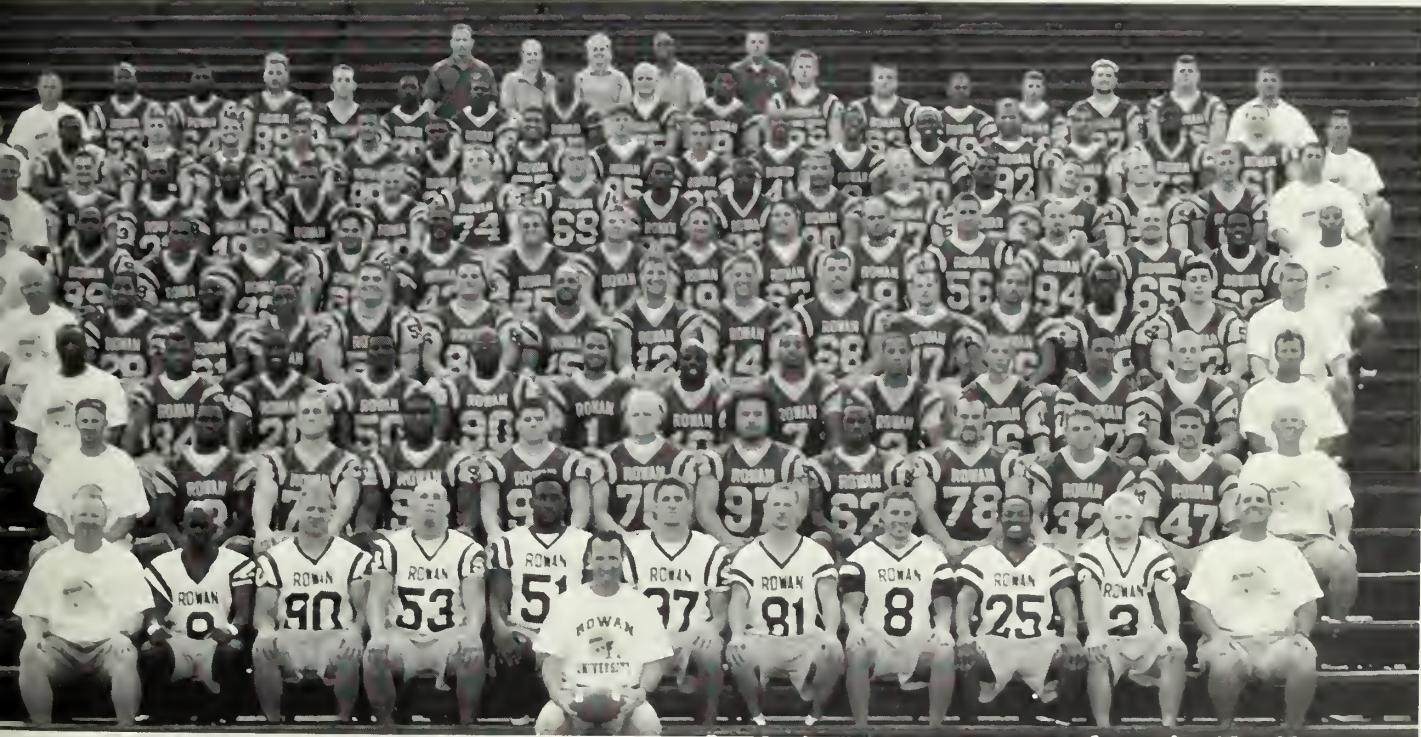

Very sincerely,

Rowan University President's Address

Dr. Donald Farish

Dear Rowan Graduate:

Congratulations on your successful career at Rowan! We are proud of your accomplishments, and I hope you share that sense of pride. I also hope you feel well prepared to enter the next phase of your life.

Graduates are important to us. In fact, our raison d'être as a university is to help create successful graduates. Because society judges us as an institution by its assessment of the quality of our graduates, we continue to have a lot at stake as you move forward with your life and career.

For that reason, we wish to stay connected to you. As an alumna/us, you will soon begin to receive regular copies of Rowan Magazine. That magazine will keep you informed of the changes and events that occur with our campus and with our graduates. I hope to be reading about your successes in the pages of the magazine in the coming years, and I urge you to play an active role in our alumni organization.

I hope you feel as we do—that you will always be a part of the Rowan family. I also hope that you will help us become an even better institution in the future. As our reputation grows, so, too, will the value of your degree.

Commencement is a bittersweet time for the university. We are proud to see you as a graduate, but saddened that you will no longer be a part of our daily lives. Each of you is special to particular members of our faculty and staff, and for that reason I urge you to stay in touch with those special individuals. I can assure you, from 30 years experience, that nothing gives more joy to a professor or staff member than to hear of the successes of their former students.

Again, please accept my warmest congratulations—and I look forward to seeing you at Commencement!

Sincerely yours,

Donald J. Farish

Letter from the Image Editor-in-Chief

Andrea L. Pujat

Dear Fellow Graduates:

RU ready? We ask ourselves this question continuously in different ways and at different times throughout our lives. With every decision and each trial we face, we ask others and ourselves: "Are you ready?" Ready to take the chance, ready to face the consequences, ready to understand the meaning, ready to move forward toward the future.

You were ready when you made the decision to spend your college years at Rowan. You were ready when you chose a major to focus the rest of your life around. Are you ready? Do not be afraid of the question. You have answered this question by forming the memories and bonds, facing the challenges and triumphs that life has given you thus far. Make the decision for yourself, seek counsel from others, but remember that ultimately you are the one to decide.

Rowan has helped you to be ready! You have the support from those who have inspired you for so long. Whether your sharpest memory is of a sister in your sorority or a friend from downstairs in your residence hall, hold onto those people who have helped to shape whom you've become.

You are ready for all the challenges and triumphs to come. I will not wish you future luck, I will wish you courage – the courage to answer the question - Are you ready? Answer that question with action not words. Answer that question with confidence and assurance. Answer that question with authority and believe you have the ability and the knowledge that has been gained and learned over the past years.

As you close this yearbook and complete this chapter of your life as a college student, put your memories of Rowan in a significant place in your heart. Use this 2001 Image to renew and relive the chapter of your life entitled Rowan. Use what you have learned to answer the future challenging question: Are you Ready?
